Remembering the past helps us understand who we are and where we come from. For many people, memories of childhood bring warmth and happiness. They may remember playing with friends, helping their parents, or visiting their grandparents in the countryside. These memories shape our personality and teach us important life lessons.

History also helps us learn from the past. By studying important events, we can understand how our country has developed over time. Visiting historical places, such as old villages or famous landmarks, allows us to connect with earlier generations. It also helps young people appreciate the values and traditions that have been passed down.

However, remembering the past does not mean living in it. While memories are important, we should also focus on the present and plan for the future. By learning from past experiences, we can avoid making the same mistakes again. In this way, the past becomes a guide that leads us toward better decisions and a brighter future.

Question 19: According to paragraph 1, what do childhood memories often bring?

Today, many teenagers are addicted to the Internet. They use it too often and for too long. Once they are on the net, they can't turn it off.

In fact, the Internet is very interesting and useful. When online, you can read the news, find information, connect and share things with friends, shopping, playing games, etc. There are good reasons to spend time online.

However, teenagers with an Internet addiction are online too much. They don't just go online to find information, have fun, or study. Sometimes they go online because they want to escape the stress and problems in their lives. Many internet addicts stop caring about their real lives, and concentrate only on their online lives. This has a bad effect on their health, some even have a mental disorder, and their study also has to suffer.

One way Internet addicts can get help is by using special software. This software controls how much time someone can spend online. It tells the computer to turn off the internet after a certain amount of time.
